Intensive Short-Term Dynamic Psychotherapy (IS-TDP)

developed by Habib Davanloo, Professor of Psychiatry at the University of Montreal.

Since the 1960s Davanloo started to record his psychotherapy sessions on video. He verified the effectiveness of his interventions by studying the verbal and non-verbal reactions of his patients. He developed new psychodiagnostic tools and precise interventions. These interventions made it possible for a broad range of patients to overcome their anxiety, self-destructive defensive behavior and were able to experience and process their underlying feelings with the help of the therapist.

The method has now been extensively researched spearheaded by the work of Dr. Allan Abbass and has been found effective with complex patients with Anxiety Disorders, Depression, Neurotic disorders, Psychosomatic Disorders and Personality Disorders. The problems are tackled at the emotional roots. Resistances against emotional closeness can be overcome. So marked and persistent change in the patients' relationship functioning occur.
